Environment Agency

In January 2012 we were contacted by the Environment Agency to help them develop a new corporate signage identity at their prestigious flag ship Thames Barrier site. The Thames Barrier is the world's second largest movable flood barrier, it was officially opened on 8th May 1984 and has been an Environment Agency controlled site since 1996.

The brief was to design a wayfinding system to improve the visitor experience to the site and its facilities

Boveney and Bray Locks

Jactone were commissioned to work with the Environment Agency on two locks, Boveney and Bray along with the flagship Thames Barrier site. All were prominent in the celebrations during the summer of 2012 and had to be looking their best.

We surveyed, designed and manufactured signs to the Environment Agency guidelines, including post and panel signs, directional signs, interpretation panels, safety signs, flags, banners and plaques.

Sign Solutions

Environment Agency

Jactone has been a contracted supplier to the Environment Agency for over six years

On a daily basis we are discussing signs and solutions with them ranging from simple door or safety signs up to major site projects including survey, design, manufacture and installation. Along the way we provide solutions to some very unique situations usually involving waterways, signs located in the middle of rivers, safety signs along large stretches of river bank and signs suspended over the Thames.
